PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

It's August!

Is this the end of summer or the Beginning of Training, trips and shows?

This Thursday we have Dave Lagrimas of the Pentair fame and two of his right arm field Tech support members, to answer any questions you might have.

The PIE show in Monterey, September 29, 30, and October 1st. Get your rooms early (they go fast).

Also in Reno Nevada October 20 and 21 is the Tools For Success by Pentair.

Remember the early PIE show Seminar registration cost ($75.00) will be reimbursed at the next meeting in October.

Take a couple of days... a couple of classes... and kick back (just a little).

Check your email. Please fill out your BLUE CARDS and email them back ASAP.

Thank you to all the members. Doing a great job covering one of our members' on sick route It is the IPSSA way.

Thank You, Joe McVeigh

Flexibility is Needed

While we are on the subject of allowing higher pH levels for swimming pools, it is interesting to note that there are water municipalities that provide tap water with a pH in the range of 8.8 to 9.3 to millions of residents. Yes, that is correct, and they add about 2.0 ppm of chloramines for sanitizing. That water is safe, and does not adversely affect people who ingest or bathe in it.

Even the PhD chemists at Olin Chemicals 40 years ago wrote that a pH of 7.2 to 8.4 was non-irritating to the eyes, and was more of a concern when the pH is below 7.2.

Another point is that many service techs (and even self-maintenance pool owners) have been following the Jock Hamilton Index, which recommends maintaining the pH at 7.8 to 8.2, and they have been successful at doing this for many years without problems.

Since the pH of pool water generally wants to rise to 8.0 and often up to 8.4 (assuming a moderate alkalinity), and since that pool water can be properly balanced and sanitized, without eye or skin irritation, and without cloudiness, why not allow service techs to maintain pool water at a pH of 8.0, 8.2, or even 8.4 when they are using a non-alkaline sanitizer?

Why are restrictive standards being imposed that may make maintaining pool water more difficult, cumbersome, and complicated in certain conditions? There can be easier and more effective ways to maintain pools, and not only is that possible, it is the way many experienced service techs and pool companies are maintaining their pools today, and have been for over 40 years.

This is not the first time that service technicians have pointed out that chemical experts could use a little advice or even correction. Service professionals demonstrated that the "Acid Column" technique was a myth, and it was service professionals who corrected the industry's dosage charts for acid and baking soda.

Currently, the APSP is developing a new water chemistry standard for residential pools. Now is the time to modernize and correct the old material that is in need of an update. Service technicians have much to contribute to the process, rather than relying on old and occasionally incorrect information. Now is the time to create standards that can withstand scientific and reasonable scrutiny — and allow for us to work smarter rather than merely "the way it has always been done..."

Rio Olympics: Green Pools Caused by Hydrogen Peroxide Dump

By SARAH LYALL RIO DE JANEIRO

Olympics officials on Saturday gave what they said was a definitive explanation why the water in two competition pools turned green this week. Someone, the officials said, mistakenly added 160 liters of hydrogen peroxide on Aug. 5, neutralizing the chlorine and allowing the growth of "organic compounds" that might have included algae.

On Saturday, the water in the diving pool was still a murky bottle-green color, while the water in the second pool, used for water polo and synchronized swimming, had begun to look a bit lighter and a bit bluer. Athletes have been complaining that the water or the chemicals treating it hurt their eyes, and that murkiness makes underwater visibility impossible.

Abashed at reports that they had not been transparent enough about the scope of the problem or quick enough to solve it, Andrada and Nascimento held a news conference Saturday at the site of the pools, the Maria Lenk Aquatics Center. They said they did not want to assign blame for the thought he was doing the right thing, the hard way." Hydrogen peroxide is a perfectly plausible
